Mod Pawd Cat Cottages and Production Studio Open for Biz!

They're called Mod Pawds! They're located on SEAACA's property in Downey! They're designed to feature homeless shelters cats, increasing awareness and adoptions! They're very cool!

SEAACA, the Southeast Area Animal Control Authority, in Downey and the Found Animals Foundation of Los Angeles officially unveiled the new Mod Pawds at SEAACA Wednesday morning.

"Our cats will be featured on the internet via the on-site production studio ... a first of its kind," said Dan Morrison, Executive Director for SEAACA. "The public can visit our kitties inside the Mod Pawds during normal business hours and adopt them on the spot if it's a good fit."

The Found Animals Foundation, a LA-based non-profit animal shelter assistance organization provided the funding and staffing for the Pawds.

"We're going to show off these amazing little creatures like never before, with the goal being more life-long adoptions," said Aaron Reyes, Director of Operations at SEAACA. "We have to make an effort to change society's perception of cats, and we think the Mod Pawds will play a big role in that effort."
